

THE WORST, ONEWAY

More Dead in Johnstown, Says Clara Barton, but Less Distress.

HORRORS WHERE HEARTS BLEED.

How Sufferers From Cycles and Wars Attract Sympathy.

A SOCIETY HAVING KINGS AND QUEENS.

How It Has Extended, Ever Into Turkey, and Brought the Star and Crescent.

Clara Barton has seen, several times, a great deal more suffering than she sees in Johnstown. She has never been in the midst of so many dead before, however. She gives THE DISPATCH an instructive talk on the great Red Cross Society she represents.

(FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)

JOHNSTOWN, June 12.—One of the busiest women in Johnstown today is Miss Clara Barton, President of the National Department of the Red Cross Society; but she nevertheless found time to cordially receive her correspondent and give him the following facts concerning the noble society she so worthily represents.

"In the first place," said Miss Barton, "let me give you some little idea of what the Red Cross Society really is. Although we have been closely identified with everything that could be considered a national calamity since 1862, comparatively few people understand what our mission is. To-day every civilized nation recognizes the society as a humanitarian, and every civilized country—with the exception of Turkey, that has special permission to use the crescent and star on one hospital flag, the red cross on a white background.

"But great and powerful as our organization is, it will be still greater, for we are growing—slowly, it is true, for that is our object. We don't want to grow too fast."

To Get Firmly Rooted.

"We don't want too much top. Among our members are some of the best people in the world. I have here a cablegram from the Grand Duchess of Baden, who has heard of our calamity here and sends her deepest sympathy."

"In regard to what place the present disaster may be assigned in comparison to others, we have been connected with, I would say that in loss of life it stands foremost and alone, but in regard to the amount of physical suffering, it is not to be compared to the cyclone at Mt. Vernon two years ago. Here people who were injured and unable to help themselves were drowned; but those who were struck by falling timbers or trees were left lying upon the ground and had to be picked up by search parties and carried to a hospital, and the entire disaster was averted."

In reply to a question regarding the sanitary condition of the town and the danger of an epidemic, Miss Barton said: "Considering the circumstances, the sanitary condition of the town is excellent. I do not think that there is the slightest danger of an epidemic. Of course I cannot say that I have not, but I consider the possibility as very remote."

Ready if Contingency Comes.

"We are in readiness, however. Experience has taught us that caution is never thrown away. Our hospital for contagious diseases is in excellent position on the hillside, completely isolated from surrounding houses, and our surgeons are ready at a moment's notice."

Miss Barton is a gentle little woman, whose slender figure seems scarcely strong enough to support the heavy burden of organization so often placed upon her. She is of about middle age and her black hair is just slightly tinged with gray but her voice is strong and her method of disposing of routine work simply marvelous.

Continuing her chat, and changing to the historical phase of her subject, she said: "It is generally considered that we are a religious society; that we were organized for the relief principally of Catholic sufferers. Others imagine that Protestants alone receive our benefits, both of which are wrong."

"The Red Cross Society knows no creed, sect, nation, or color. It has but one object—the relief of suffering humanity, wherever found or under whatever conditions. It knows no universal language—that expressing the cry for help. The society is not confined to the United States—in fact, our country was among the last to join the federation, being the thirty-second country to do so."

And it was the Red Cross Society that was founded in Europe and to-day its services can be utilized for that purpose alone, but in drawing up the constitution of the society in the United States and considering how Little Possibility of War.

"There was for—I don't think many Americans would care to have any more trouble with us," she added with a smile, "I don't believe after our killing experience, we are able to try it again only the very small number included in the draft. Goods, fires, cyclones, etc."

"When a country desires to join the International society, a draft of constitution is forwarded to the headquarters at Geneva, where it is first acted upon and then carried to the congress at Bern, where, if satisfactory, it is introduced into the country applying. Now my introduction of the other calamities was a decided innovation, and I confess that I had serious doubts as to its acceptance, but by a unanimous vote the United States was admitted. As I had labored for years with the different congresses to persuade them to pass resolutions applying to international membership, you may judge of my delight at the consummation of my hope. Each country has its own national organization, independent of the congress at Geneva, and its own governing officers."

Only the American Head.

"Many people imagine that I am the head and front of the entire Red Cross Society. This is not so. I am simply the President of the division of the United States, to which position I was appointed by President Garfield, from the position was first offered and declined."

"Our great object is to be always prepared to have an organization set up at a moment's notice, thoroughly equipped to face any peril or emergency—an organization in which the people will place their confidence."

"It will be the work of years, but we are patient workers and can wait. I can liken it to the present system employed in extinguishing fires. In the olden time, when a fire was discovered, the people first ran to see what was needed and then had to return and obtain supplies of buckets, axes, etc., but now an organized force is at the scene of action, and the people know that all that is necessary will be done. Yet when fire apparatus was first introduced, for a long time the people still contributed to run. It is the same with the Red Cross Society. We want to know that the people will be completely dependent on any calamity, however great."

WOMAN'S HOME RELIEF.

A Society for That Purpose Organized by the Red Cross Executive.

(FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)

JOHNSTOWN, June 12.—Miss Clara Barton, of the Red Cross Society, organized a Woman's Home Relief Society this afternoon. She accomplished this by going to the ministers of the various churches in Johnstown and asking them to select from their congregations such ladies as they thought would be willing to join the society. The result has been very promising, and work will be commenced to-morrow.

The object of the organization will be to extend relief into the homes of the needy, and to the different commissary departments for relief.

When the system is run down, and general debility with want of appetite prevails, Dr. Jay's Tonic Vermifuge is well adapted to meet the patient's wants, and either adult or child. It overcomes acidity of the stomach, and relieves dyspepsia, aiding the digestive functions of the body, and restoring the normal strength. It is the best of women medicines also, and aids the body of the mother in her efforts to rear a healthy child.

SHE WILL NOT BE THERE.

Mr. Cleveland Will Not Attend the Wedding of Miss Jenks.

Ex-Solicitor General George A. Jenks, of Brookville, arrived in the city last night to remain several days. He will appear as a case in the United States Circuit Court in which there is at stake $20,000, which is claimed to be due from Richard Arthur as assignee of Carrier & Baum.

Mr. Jenks was asked about the report that Mrs. Cleveland would be present at the wedding of his daughter on the 19th. He said that he had heard of the report, but that there was no truth in it whatever. "Of course," said he, "such a report would naturally be of interest to many who have heard so much of Mrs. Cleveland. No doubt many would have wanted to be in Brookville to see her had there been the least likelihood of her being present."

"What do you think of Governor Beaver's plan of borrowing $1,000,000 from the State treasury?" asked the reporter.

"I haven't paid attention to it. It seems from what I have read that the Governor wants the Treasurer to commit a massive loan in order to take for industry a bond which would be worth the paper it's written on. The Governor, however, is not to be taken in by such a plan, and this is just what he wants the Treasurer to do. I think the latter should consult the Attorney General; but as no appropriation for funds has been made, I don't see how the Treasurer could do so."

Well, the Johnsons recently was several times in the same year. However, if the Legislature were to meet, pass an appropriation and adjourn, it might be so very bad."

The Lewin-Leonard Nuptials.

Last evening the marriage of Mr. Hugo Lewin, of Uniontown, and Miss Hettie Leonard, of Locust street, Pittsburgh, was performed at the latter's residence by Rabbi Bernheim. The ceremony was a quiet one, and was attended by a few friends.

These Big Red Signs.

The attention of everyone passing corner Grant and Diamond st. is attracted toward the big red signs in the corner windows of the Pittsburgh Combination Clothing Company (P. C. C. Each suit is ticketed with the reduced price, and anyone knowing the least thing about clothing value can, at a glance, see how the prices have been slashed. The entire stock of suits, both men's and boys', must be sold at once, and there is just half the price to be saved on a suit of clothes. It's a genuine treat to look at the window display and see the bargains.

Big Cry--Little Wool.

Don't be disturbed when common clothing brags loudly. It's lost its buyers, that's all.

It puts its price down too late. It had little wool in it, and you found it out, and took your money elsewhere.

Cloth counts, workmanship counts, style counts, and when you get these of the very best at Wanamaker's for a low price, it's easy to figure out that inferior clothing'll be hurt. But you needn't bother. You're sure of our make. You're sure of our prices being lowest.

And lower still in clearing out broken lots.
